Gould Opens Sept. 15—Dormitories Filled

Gould Academy will open its doors on Tuesday, Sept. 15, to start on her 107th year with the largest boarding enrollment in its history. The girls' dormitory is completely filled, and several girls are being temporarily housed in the homes of the Headmaster and the Senior Master. The recent decision of the Trustees to limit the number of boarding students on the girls' side of the campus to our own dormitory facilities has made it necessary for the Headmaster to return many recent applications. The facilities in the boys' dormitory—Holden Hall—are also all utilized, but if 10 or more boys still await admission on Sept. 7, the Academy will make another house available as additional dormitory space.

Not only has the enrollment greatly increased, but the distribution has been more widespread with larger numbers from every one of the New England states, as well as New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

Gould has been very fortunate, during these troubled times, to have held most of its faculty intact. David Thompson, formerly of the Brunswick School, Greenwich, Conn., has been secured to take over Howard Chivers' duties in Holden Hall and Teachers' English.

Robert Bateman has recently been inducted into the army, and his place will be filled within the week and announced next week. Miss Sarah Staples, who resigned this spring, has been replaced by Mrs. Estelle Goggin, who will act as dietitian and matron of the dormitory with special duties at the Gehring Home.

School will open this year at 8:45 and close one-half hour later than last year. This will make it more convenient for those coming from the outlying districts.

Gould will inaugurate a course in Pre-aviation training this fall if interest warrants, and also have a course in art added to its well-rounded curriculum. The Pre-aviation course requires two years of Mathematics—Algebra and Geometry—and some science as prerequisites. The student in this course must also take Physics, if not previously taken, and continue in Mathematics.

Pupils planning to attend the Academy from Hanover and Newry should notify the office regarding bus accommodations if their arrangements have not already been made. Likewise, pupils from East Bethel and Locke Mills should do the same.

Pupils from Mason and West Bethel should communicate with Roderick McMillin and arrange for reservations and time of bus schedule.

McCRODDEN'S SUMMERING AT EAST MEDITERRANEAN PORT

In a letter postmarked Jerusalem, July 30, recently received by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Herrick, their daughter, Kathryn Herrick McCrodden, describes a very delightful trip which she had just made by plane from Istanbul to Adana, Turkey.

She describes the scenery as being very beautiful, a pleasant stop at Ankara and the last lap made at an altitude of 15,000 feet over the high Taurus mountains of southern Turkey.

Mr. and Mrs. McCrodden are spending the summer at Mersin, a small town on the Mediterranean coast very near the Syrian border, where Mr. McCrodden is employed as engineer by an English construction company. The tropical climate is described as being very hot and damp, the Mediterranean water too warm and salty for pleasant swimming but the living quarters and food furnished by the English superb.

Mr. and Mrs. McCrodden will return to Istanbul early in September and both begin another year of teaching at Robert College, where McCrodden has been made professor of engineering.

A WEEK of The WAR

Gen. MacArthur's Australian headquarters reported in a special communique Aug. 31 that Japanese invasion troops have suffered a disastrous defeat in the Milne Bay area of New Guinea. A force of Australian shock troops had been secretly concentrated along the Bay in anticipation of the Japanese landing Aug. 26, the report said, and as a result the Japanese landed in a trap. The Japanese lost all of an "enormous quantity" of heavy material they landed, including tanks, and except for a few troops evacuated by an enemy cruiser and eight destroyers, the enemy land force was annihilated.

The Navy announced that Marines holding six islands in the southeastern Solomons had killed or captured all Japanese troops attempting to retake the islands. The Navy reported Aug. 30 that seven enemy planes were shot down when they attempted to raid the airfield facilities which the Marines had captured on Guadalcanal, bringing the total of enemy planes shot down in the Solomons fighting to 78. The Navy also announced the Marines, with Navy support, raided the Japanese base on Makin Island in the Gilberts, killing all but two of an estimated 330 enemy garrison. U. S. losses were less than 1 to 10 of Japanese.

In the European theater, U. S. Flying Fortresses bombed the airfield of Wevelghem, near Central in Belgium, in the eighth straight operation without loss. In other precision bombing raids, the Fortresses attacked the Rotterdam shipyards and an airplane factory at Meule in northern France. Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell announced Aug. 31 in Chungking, China, that U. S. Army planes based in China have made heavy and successful attacks on Myitkyna and Lashio, the two largest Japanese bases in northern Burma. The Navy announced the sinking of five more United Nations merchant ships by enemy submarines in the Atlantic. Joseph C. Grew, former Ambassador to Japan newly returned from Tokyo, said in a radio address the Japanese will fight "with all the force and power at their command . . . until they are utterly crushed." Mr. Grew stated "We are up against a powerful fighting machine, a people whose morale cannot and will not be broken even by successive defeats, who will certainly not be broken by economic hardships, a people who individually and collectively will gladly sacrifice their lives for their emperor and their nation, and who can be brought to earth only by complete defeat in battle."

Stabilization of Farm Prices
The Office of Price Administration announced it is planning a price ceiling for live hogs and similar action for cattle prices. The ceiling would be worked out in conjunction with representatives of livestock producers. The Office said "vigorous steps" are being taken to enforce quality grading provisions of its beef regulations to prevent upgrading as an evasion of price levels. The Agriculture Department reported a 9-point advance in farm prices from July 15 to Aug. 15, raising the general level to 163 percent of the pre-World War I figure, 32 points higher than a year ago.

Rationing
The OPA ordered reexamination by local boards of all supplemental gasoline ration books, particularly C books for motorists in 14 designated occupations and S books for operators of commercial vehicles. New books will be issued for the amount the operator is fairly entitled to, if present coupons are found in excess, and deliberate violations of regulations will be prosecuted, the Office said. The OPA announced 35,000 new passenger cars will be made available for rationing in September, compared with 13,250 in August, but all unused quotas were recalled and no carry-overs will be permitted in the future. The quota of 90,000 bicycles for September is the same as for August.

The Armed Forces
The War Department raised from 45 to 50 the maximum age at which men "who have character, skills or aptitudes which make their enlistment desirable and who are otherwise qualified" and who have draft board permission may enlist in the Army. They will be assigned to overhead units or installations where they will release younger men for general military service, and if fit they will be used for combat duty. War Secretary Stimson said.

Marine Corps enlistees, men, as well as Navy enlistees, may now apply for flight training to become Naval aviation glider pilots, who act as co-pilots for large transport gliders. During the week, the 45,000 ton battleship Iowa—heaviest vessel ever launched in the U. S.—the aircraft carrier Independence, the cruiser Boston, and two destroyers, the Glennon and Jeffers, were launched. The Red Cross and the Navy jointly announced a new rescue project under which buoyant waterproof bags containing emergency food, water and medical supplies, cigarettes, etc., will be dropped by Navy patrol blimps to seamen awaiting rescue, before they are actually picked up by rescue vessels.

Strategic Materials
War Production Chairman Nelson said 2,000,000 cars from automobile graveyards have been converted into 400,000 tons of steel scrap a month during the last four months, but the steel industry is now consuming approximately 4,800,000 tons of scrap a month in 1938. SCHOOL DAYS

By DWIG

JACKSON-SILVER UNIT

The most important affair of the week to Jackson-Silver Post and Unit was the reception Saturday evening to Dept. President Fannie Cummings who just returned from a 10 day visit in Aroostook County. This was highlighted by several events, among them the unexpected attendance of Governor and Mrs. Sewall who were apparently relaxed and enjoying every minute.

The Governor and Department Commander Day proved the part of our ritual which says, "There is no rank or creed among us," by their attention to the younger Americans who went down the receiving line. "Jim" Boyle gave a very forceful address and it was too bad the hall was not packed to hear him.

That grand old man, George

Jones, Past Department Commander of the G. A. R., headed the receiving line saying, "I made up my mind to ride 20 miles to see Fannie fed, if it is the last thing before my taps are sounded!" Our Gold Star Mother, Arvilla Silver, was present as well as our Gold Star Sister, Clara Jackson, who made the presentation of the Auxiliary gift and who was complimented many times for the way she carried out her assignment.

Never having had the privilege of giving a reception in honor of a Department President before, the opening of gifts was overlooked until most of the guests had gone home. However, they are on display at Fannie's home and anyone who likes may see them there. On the whole, the affair went off smoothly, as the guest of honor said, "Just as I would have had it," and that is what counts.

A letter of congratulation was read from CMM Alanson Cummings by Evelyn Barrett, to whom it was sent as a surprise for Fannie. We would not have missed for anything the singing of Marguerite Shaw and John Foss, which added so much to our program.

The next regular meeting of the Post and Unit will be held on Friday evening when the September birthdays will serve.

GEO. A. MUNDT UNIT, No. 81

A special meeting of the Geo. A. Mundt Unit No. 81 was called by President Selma Chapman.

Several matters of business were attended to. An invitation was read inviting the Unit to the reception to be given our State President, Fannie Cummings at West Paris Gymnasium on August 29th. It was hoped several might attend.

I was voted to contribute the usual amount to the Salvation Army on its annual drive.

An interesting letter from a soldier in Santa Maria, Cal. was read thanking the Unit for the booklet, "Fall In," which we have been sending and giving our local boys in the armed forces. Also a card from another sending thanks for the same booklet.

Articles of interest from the "Pine Tree News," were read beginning with our State President's message.

Mrs. French, our chaplain, took up an article in the "National News."

It was voted to paint and do any other necessary work on our building at the North Waterford Fair grounds as soon as possible.

There were nine members present.

FEED AND TRANSPORTATION

Both dairymen and poultrymen have learned from various sources that there is no shortage of feed. The fact has not been brought home to them that there is a real shortage of transportation.

The situation as to the delivery of feeds in New England is serious. A tremendous burden is being placed on the railroads. War materials must be transported. Oil that once came to New England by tankers is, for the most part, carried by rail. While cars of feed will have a certain priority, delays are occurring now. More delays will come.

A sad situation would develop in New England should the interruption in transportation last too long. A poultryman can do without feed not more than three days. Then it would be necessary to sell his flock. A dairyman could "carry on" without feed for a long time. His production would go below the profit point. At the same time, there would be a loss of volume. That volume is needed for the war effort.

Most farms carry a low reserve of feeds—three to seven days supply. Under present conditions, it is good business for every farmer to buy his feeds in larger quantities than he has been buying them heretofore. Under present conditions, feed manufacturers cannot guarantee prompt delivery to grain dealers. Consumers can help their dealers, themselves, and the war effort by buying their feeds in larger quantities. This means that the grain dealer can go to the farm with a full load. Time, labor, tires and gas will thus be saved. These items mean much to our country at war.

No one person knows the solution of the problems which the New England farmer must face. The feed manufacturer who does his best to furnish him with the best in feeds has done his part.

The feed manufacturer is confronted with the problem of making prompt delivery to the dealer. Sometimes that dealer is disappointed. His car doesn't arrive on time. The consumer can help the dealer by buying in larger quantities, and placing his order well in advance of his needs.

The more feed a farmer stores the keener he must be in dealing with the rat and mice problem. It's good business, if he doesn't feel capable of taking care of this problem himself, to get the information furnished by his State Department of Agriculture relative to the control of rodents. Bags are worth real money these days.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare

Detroit has long been the living, vital symbol of American genius for production. The automobile and kindred industries made it so. There, for generations, men worked and pioneered and made an ever-improving product at an ever-decreasing cost. There, record after record was broken. Skeptics said this dream or that was impossible and the production men made them eat their words. So when war began, the eyes of the United Nations were largely focused in Detroit. Swiftly and efficiently, great industry after great industry abandoned production for peace and turned to production for war. Detroit was to be the very heart of the arsenal of democracy. But the harsh fact is that Detroit has not lived up to what was expected of it.

In a recent issue, Life said this: "The new, from Detroit is bad this summer. Few people across the country realize how bad it is. Wildcat strikes and sit-downs, material shortages and poor planning at the top have cut into Detroit's production of war weapons. Detroit's workers seem to hate and suspect their bosses more than ever. Detroit's manufacturers, who are the world's best producers, have made a failure of their labor relations. And the government, which is asking Detroit to produce more and more, is divided within itself on how to get the most production." That indictment was, indeed, in effect, by a man who is an unquestioned expert on war production—Lieutenant General Brecken Somervell, the Army's chief of supply. The General recently made a tour of Michigan factories, and then said that not a man, machine or plant is yet producing at full capacity. A striking example of that is found in Henry Ford's great Willow Run bomber plant. By now, according to original plans it should be producing tremendous numbers of big bombers. Instead, it is working at part-capacity on sub-assemblies for other factories and not one plane has been completed on its miles of assembly lines.

The basic reason for Detroit's troubles can be expressed in two words: hate, distrust. The Labor leaders fight management, and management has no faith in the labor leaders. There is a constant clash of races and religion. Faction battles irrespective of what happens to the war effort as a result. The politicians peddle hot air, and, although or otherwise, put votes ahead of an honest, all-out war effort. And so the battle of production is going badly in the city and the territory which has led the world for decades in industrial achievement. There are many good men in Detroit. There are great engineers, fine managers, able and skilled workers. But they aren't pulled together.

What is true in Detroit is true in many other industrial areas. This country has made spectacular progress in certain kinds of production. Such industries as the West Coast ship builders and aircraft manufacturers have actually exceeded the goals laid down for them by wide margins. But in other equally vital fields, production schedules are not being met and it does the nation no service to headline the successes and soft-pedal the failures. As Elmer Davis, Office of War Information said in a recent release, the United States is not yet geared by a long shot to the demands of ruthless total war.

It is clear that the government itself must carry much of the blame. It has coddled labor, and permitted it to demand and receive wage increases, which make workable price control impossible. It has permitted incompetent men to make decisions. There has been inadequate and inefficient control of the production and flow of basic materials—with the result that some plants are shutting down because of lack of supplies, while other plants have more supplies on hand than they can use. The bureaucrats and the red-tape artists are still a tremendous power in chaotic Washington.

Congress, in the opinion of many a commentator, has been a disgrace to itself and to the country. With the thought of the November elections in mind, it has side-stepped and straddled issues of the very first importance. It has minimized the gravest dangers, and sought to pass the buck. And it has kept the public wondering and perplexed.

Just what the cure for all this is, no one knows. But almost every man who understands this war does know that a cure must be found—and found soon. The Axis marches on, and consolidates its victories. The Axis cannot be beaten until real unity is achieved in this country—until self interest is made impotent—and until the American genius for building things is completely organized and put to work.

Some of the brightest and bravest pages in the history of this war are being written in the Balkans. Hitler's brutal legions have overrun the little states—but they have not broken the spirit of the people. The Balkan people, by the million are fighting back.

The saga of General Mihailovich, the Yugoslavian leader, will make a magnificent book some day. When the Yugoslavian armies were crushed, a plane was ready to take him to safety. But he refused to go. He remained behind to organize the most formidable guerrilla army in history—an army which has taken a toll of thousands of Germans and Italians.

Some 23,000 square miles of rough, persistent country is still controlled by Mihailovich's hordes. Hitler and Mussolini have no biter, braver, or more determined enemy.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. As Dr. Doan's Pills, Dr. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor.

DOAN'S PILLS

SHOOTING THE WORKS

CAMPAIGN TO LESSEN NATION'S ACCIDENTS

Henry P. Weaver, Chief of Maine State Police, is one of a group of public officials throughout the nation who have approved the recently launched campaign to "Smash the 7th Column."

The "7th Column" is the carelessness that causes accidents which cut down the amount of war material that can be produced in American factories.

"I have read this material with much interest and feel that the new campaign to smash the '7th Column' is a fine idea and a step in the right direction," wrote Chief Weaver to S. Bruce Black, president of the Liberty Mutual Insurance Company, which is sponsoring the campaign to "Smash the 7th Column."

"With so much being done to increase the war effort and keep production at its height," continued Chief Weaver's letter, "surely every thing possible should be done to protect those on the home front. This is, of course, of vital importance, and if we can be of assistance to you, we would be pleased to do so."

Chief Weaver is one of the public officials asked to comment on the program which is Liberty Mutual's contribution to the war effort. The "7th Column" is more damaging to our war effort than the combined activities of the spies and saboteurs of the 6th Column, and the rumor-mongers and dissension-breeders of the 6th Column, say the company.

Accidents are caused by carelessness, and since Pearl Harbor, the number of war workers killed in accidents, up to July 1, is more than the number of American soldiers killed in action during the same period, figures reveal.

In launching this "anti-7th Column" campaign, the insurance company has diverted its entire advertising and promotion budgets which have been substantially increased, from the sale of insurance to this startlingly different kind of "safety drive," company officials said. Accidents are the normal peace-time business of Liberty Mutual and it is logical that we should devote our war-time effort to preventing them, said Bennett Moors vice president.

Every day, 12,300 Americans are killed or injured in accidents. That means that those Americans are lost to the nation's production lines. This evil on the home front must be stamped out, said Mr. Moors. There were 102,500 Americans killed last year, and 9,000,000 others injured.

Further showing the danger of the "7th Column," and the role of the insurance company in war-time, Mr. Moors said.

"If a man wrecks his car, we can pay the money loss, but we can't put a new car in his garage. His house burns down, we can spare him a crippling loss. But the dollars we pay him can't rebuild his home until the war is over.

"If a man is injured on the job we can pay his hospital and doctor bills. We can pay part of his lost income. But we can't fill his place on the production line."

The "Smash the 7th Column" campaign, says Mr. Moors, is designed to do a better job than the other "safety" campaigns which seek passive approval and acceptance of a set of "safety rules." Americans are aggressive people, and now they have been given something to fight against—the "7th Column"—the carelessness that causes accidents.

WHEN MAINE RAN THE GOVERNMENT

The following anecdote was printed in the Citizen a few years ago and illustrates the type of men this State was sending to the Nation's capital at one time:

The late John S. Wise of Virginia rushed into the office of Speaker Thomas B. Reed at the Capitol one day 40 years ago and demanded:

"Who's running the government anyway? I come up here on business with the Secretary of State, Mr. Blaine from Maine. I call to pay my respects to the Acting Vice-President, Mr. Frye from Maine. I wish to consult the leader of the United States Senate, Mr. Hale from Maine. I would talk over a tariff matter with the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Mr. Dingley from Maine. There is a naval bill in the House in which I am greatly interested. Chairman Boutelle from Maine. I wish an addition to the public building in Richmond, Chairman Milliken from Maine. And here I am in the august presence of the Speaker, Mr. Reed from Maine."

"Yes, John," Tom Reed drawled, "the great and the good and the wise are running the government. The country is safe."

And they went out to lunch with the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, Mr. Fuller from Maine.

PICTURE YOUR HOBBY

You don't have to like cycling to enjoy this fine snapshot—but pictures like this will help to make any pastime or hobby more memorable.

PHOTOGRAPHY as a universal hobby has one great advantage in that it fits in perfectly with practically any other pastime or avocation.

If you like to go hiking, bike riding, or camping you can always take your camera along. If you are interested in animals and birds, flowers, or chemistry and metallurgy, the camera provides a perfect means of preserving your experiences. Not only is picture making enjoyable in itself, but it will actually increase the enjoyment you obtain from your other hobbies.

The best idea, of course, is to use your camera constructively. If you like to build things—model trains, for example—keep a step-by-step record of your work whenever you build something new. Many specialists—such as engineers, doctors, and construction men—actually take their cameras to work with them. Whenever they come upon a tough problem, or an unusual case, they make a complete record of it. Such photographs are invaluable reference material.

In most cases specialized equipment isn't at all necessary. An ordinary camera, a reliable exposure guide, perhaps a close-up portrait attachment, and possibly a filter will fill all requirements. Then it's just a matter of focusing correctly and generally following good photographic technique.

Look over your other hobbies today. Think of how you might put photography to work in increasing your enjoyment of them. Whatever you're interested in, you'll get a greater kick out of it if you keep the story permanently in pictures.

Kitchen Quickies

If "haste makes waste," then these kitchen quickies are the exceptions that prove the rule.

Scrub carrots with a stiff brush. It's easier than scraping or paring and saves the vitamins and minerals as well. Cut carrots - and other long vegetables - lengthwise, and less of the nutritive qualities will escape in the cooking water.

Grease new pans and put in a warm oven before using - they'll never rust. Sift flour onto a sheet of waxed paper or paper toweling and you won't have to wash a bowl. Don't throw the paper away, either - fold it up and store in a glass jar to use again. When rolling dough on waxed paper, moisten top of table first - it prevents the paper from slipping. If you do not have a thermostatically controlled oven, put a little pan of flour in the oven when baking a cake or pie - if the flour turns golden brown, the heat is just right. If it turns dark brown, the oven is too hot.

When wrapping cake, sandwiches or anything else in waxed paper, you can make a perfect seal by running a hot iron over the edge of the paper. To cut dough for cinnamon rolls quickly and evenly, use a string - slip it under the roll, then cross the ends on top and give a quick pull. It cuts beautifully and doesn't mash down the soft dough.

THIS BUSINESS

OF Living
BY SUSAN THAYER

It Is Coming In Handy

Perhaps you found a place in the wash-house for your mother's old sewing machine. It hadn't worked for years and you should have gotten rid of it. But somehow or other you couldn't bear to throw it away. So you dug out a place and put it away, thus satisfying your sentiment and your sense of neatness at the same time.

And that old copper wash boiler that your grandmother had used... there were half a dozen holes in the bottom. Yet you couldn't bear to turn it over to a junk dealer. So you filled it with old tires and flannels and stowed it away in what used to be the buggy-shed. Then there's that collection of horse-shoes that the boys played with when they were kids. Oh yes, and the baby carriage that's been used for hauling wood for the last dozen years and that old bicycle pump that won't even wheeze.

All of these things just might "come in handy" some day, you told yourself and your family, to explain that peculiar characteristic that makes a woman hang on to things long after their usefulness is over.

Perhaps you were prophetic when you said that. For today they are coming in handy. Today they are needed, not by you or your family, but by American industry—pressed to the limit to turn out the materials for winning this war.

Never before in the history of Kenneth Ring, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Packard, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mitchell, Mrs. Julia Leighton, Miss Sarah Milliken, Mr. Gileo, Mrs. Mabel Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dunham, Eloise and Herbert Dunham, Mrs. Linnie Ring, Mrs. Bessie Ring, Billy, Eleanor, and David Ring, Mrs. William Yates, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ring, Felicia this country have we scraped the bottom of our raw material barrel. But today, with our factories using more of certain metals in a month than they used to use in a year, the question of supply is serious and a salvage committee has been appointed by industry itself to ask for your metal and other junk.

To make enough steel—the very backbone of our war production program—we must have millions of tons of iron and steel scrap. The rubber shortage is acute, so old rubber is needed and even the grease out of your frying pan is being asked for.

Now is the time to clean out the wood-shed the wash-house and the attic. Now is the time to do away with all sentiment and give your mother's sewing machine, your grandmother's wash boiler, your own baby's carriage, to the industrial system that is making it possible to win this war.

America today is at the crossroads. The freedoms which your forebears helped to establish and which you hope to pass on to your children are in jeopardy. We must do everything that Uncle Sam—or our industrial system—asks of us. So put on your oldest dress. Do your head up in a bandana—gird some old cotton gloves and get busy looking for junk without which industry can't continue to do its almost unbelievable job!

Collette, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hayes, Wayland Upton, Keith Upton, Glenis Upton, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Dunn, Mrs. Minnie Herrick, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Peabody, Eleanor Coffin, Iva Farrar, and Mr. and Mrs. Colby Ring.

WEST BETHEL UNION CHAPEL
Rev. Don Fife, Minister

We shall bring our very successful summer season of worship and church activity to a close this Sunday at 11 a. m. Rev. Don Fife will bring his farewell message to members and friends of Union Chapel at this worship hour. Your minister would appreciate your presence in God's house, this, our last Sunday together, as we follow the theme: "Think on These Things."

Your church is happy to announce that Sunday School will continue to meet each and every week at the West Bethel Union Chapel. Those who have offered their services in keeping the religious education of our youth alive are: Mrs. Olive Head, Mrs. Ruby Rolfe, Miss Arlene Davis, and Miss Esther Burris. We are indeed fortunate to be able to continue this part of the work of the church, especially when regular services have ceased. So, parents and friends, you who realize the importance of religious education, do all you can to support this important venture. Send your children regularly, encourage them at home, and invite the children of your friends to be active in the work of the Sunday School in West Bethel.

A word of appreciation comes from the heart of your minister to all who have made this summer season at Union Chapel the huge success it has been. So many have given of their time and talent in a willing and sacrificial manner, and have kept the church alive in spirit and in truth. All of you have been loyal to the endeavours your church has sponsored, and that cooperation is worthy of the heartfelt thanks of your minister. God bless you through the coming months, and may you ever keep God in your hearts, and working in and through your life.
